

BPL is not necessary. Although the technology is exciting, it will most likely cause HF interference detrimental to Amateur Radio Operators, disrupt emergency communications, and cause problems with Ship to Shore communications. Last mile broadband can easily be obtained through existing technologies specifically the bidirectional satellite connections. The BPL technology does not give any new functionality; instead it will fill the airways with unnecessary interference and disrupting communications.